have operated in and around this city, was arrested to-day and gave information that will lead to the arrest of several others, among them a liveryman who furnished the shouls with rigs with full knowledge of the purpose for which they were to be used.

McEndee at first denied any connection with grave robbers, but when contronted with evidence in possession of the datectives confessed that he had stolen twenty bodies and had delivered them to colleges in this city.

The information which led to McEndee's arrest came from the cotoged grave robbers now in jail, and the police are now in persons whose bodies were stolen, but the detectives refuse to give them out. His gang operated principally in adjoining counters and his confession brings the total number of stolen bodies up to forty-five. Albert Hunt, colored, and a number of the Controll gang were arrested to-day and confessed to robbing graves.

Chairman Griggs announced at the beginning of the campaign that there would be no predicting department to his committee, and while he has at all times been perfectly willing to say that the Democrats were going to win the control of the House he has consistently refused to go into details on this subject.

The closing efforts of the Democratic committee have been directed toward getting out the vote. To this end many thousand personal letters have been cent cut. These letters appeal to State chairmen, district chairmen and county chairmen, and to active politicians generally. They have been made personal in order to make the appeal as strong as possible. The argument is used in these letters that the whole fight depends on getting out the Democratic vote. The importance of activity on election day is set forth in these letters in the strongest language which Secretary Edwards is capable of using.

Creditors of George Diehl, Proprietor of an East St. Louis Hotel, Take Summary Action.

LARDER IS LEVIED UPON.

After Expressing Much Indignation, the Boarders Get Their Supper-Diehl Is Absent.

George Diehl, proprietor of Diehl's Hotel n East St. Louis, has not been seen in tha vicinity since Thursday. Yesterday after noon his creditors met and secured attach ments. Each one of the forty or more guests was garnisheed, and the question last night was whether they would get supper for which some had paid in ad-The larder was subject to levy. That the creditors had met and taken action against Mr. Diehl, whose absence had occasioned little comment in the house, was o'clock they began to flock in, men and women, from their places of business, and some of the latter from shopping tours. A Constable awaited them. "How much do you owe Diehl?" asked the Constable of a lady the first to come in. "Why, what do you mean? Similar "how dare you" remarks were addressed to the Constable by other women as they passed in. None showed any particular pleasure at being approached on the subject of liabilities.

Exclamations from the men guests varied in tone and quality and those expressed by persons who had paid board in advance were somewhat pointed.

The question, "Do we eat here, or do we not," was put to the Constable in chorus effect. He was unable to answer this, saying that his first duty was to serve the garnishments and ascertain the amount of bills due.

SUPPER IS SERVED.

SUPPER IS SERVED.

At first a few of the guests had declined to answer, but after excited conferences in the pariors, dining-rooms and hotel office, the desired information was compiled for the officer and a delegate sent to treat with the creditors at the officer of Justice Boyne, who issued the attachments.

Negotiations for supper and future accommodations were entered into.

The principal creditors are Henry Albright, Goldman Bros., A. N. Meints and Charles Hauss, agent for the building. Among them it was agreed that the attachment upon the larder would not be enforced. This assured the serving of supper, and, in fact, it was stated that the hostelry will be kept in operation.

George Diehl came to East St. Louis from Northern Illinois about five years ago, and at first engaged in his trade of harnessmaker. He saved enough money to purchase a cigar store, and a short time later went into the saloon business.

His saloon was profitable, and a few years ago he leased the McPherson Hotel. Last year he wanted a new house, and John C. Hall erected for him under a lease the building at the corner of Collinsville and Missouri svenues.

Diehl's creditors last night declined to discuss the state of affairs, except to ray that the indebtedness is not very great.

suggestion was neartly indorsed by asserts. Layman and break representing the Civic Improvement Leagus.

The North End business Men's Association was represented by Messrs. Hall and Crone, who desired that one of the baths be located in O'Falion Park and another in Jackson place, which is situated at the head of North Market street.

Colonel J. K. Cummings, a former member of the City Council, was of the opinion that one of the baths should be located in North St. Louis, and one at Saventh and Carr streets in the vicinity of the vacation playgrounds at that corner.

It seemed to be the consensus of opinion that one of the proposed baths should be located on the river front.

At the conclusion the board decided to take the matter under consideration, and will announce its decision at a future meeting.

The shooting took place just before noon to-day in the office of T. C. Tadleck, her attorney.

Two months ago Mrs Randall left her husband, who was a prominent real estate man here, and went to the home of her sister, Mrs. Dan W. Keltner. At the time she took a cow and other chattels to the home of her father, Joseph Cathers, near Neck City. Randall sued his father-in-law for possession of the cow and the trial was to have come up to-day.

Mrs. Randall, her brother-in-law, Keltner, and her father were in the offices of her attorney arranging preliminaries, when the husband rushed into the office with an open knife in his hand. The attorney tried to quiet him, but was pushed aside he frantic man heading directly for his wife. Then she opened fire. Only one of Coroner Dumbault of Carterville was summoned and the jury agreed as stated. Keltner caused a sensation on the stand No one suspected that he had taken part in the affray, but he said he had fired two shots, but the bullet which ended Randall's life was from his wife's weapon. She exclaimed: "I've killed him; it's al over now," and walked home with her fa-ther and Keltner. At her home she told a reporter that she had nothing to say, more than that she did it to save her own life. Both the parties were of preminent fami-lies. Randall was the ser of A. O. Randall who some years ago was in the Legislature, and the wife was formerly Miss Dorinda Cathers, daughter of Joseph Cathers, highly respected farmer. Gentlemen! Have a Delicious Dish of

St. Louis, Mo., October 31, 1902.

NOBK

The Only Cooked and Malted Ready-to-Sert Oat Food. "Richer than Wheat. Better than Mat."

A Strong Endorsement of "Norka" from One of St. Louis' Besknown Physicians. I have used in my family the new preparation of Oats called "Non" and find it superior to any other cereal now in the market.

T. GRISWOLD COMSTON M. D.

The following restaurants will serve NORKA MALTED OATS to-day:

Planters, Lindell, St. Nicholas, Sprague's Delicatessen, White Catering Co., A. J. Platt & Co., Milford's. West End Hotel, Moser Hotel, The Creamerie, And others.

Gentlemen, try a dish of this delicio new food to-day. You will enjoy the strength and tone of "Norka" and have a clear brain for the afternoon's business. Call for Norka and cream, or Norka with baked apples and cream. As a delicacy try Norka and ice cream.
